The new novel

By Mrs. HENRY DE LA PASTURE

(LADY CLIFFORD)

MRS. DE LA PASTURE

The Honourable Mrs. Garry

Author of "Peter's Mother," "The Lonely Lady of Grosvenor Square," "Master Christopher," etc.

Cloth, net, $1.35; postpaid, $1.47

ITS BACKGROUND is the most interesting social life in the world—that of fashionable London.

ITS VIVID REALITY is born of its author's birthright intimacy with London life

ITS ESSENTIAL CHARM lies in that union of interest, grace and strength, which is Mrs. de la Pasture's characteristic possession.

"One always expects a diverting book from Mrs. de la Pasture, who possesses wonderful penetration and invariably holds one's interest."—Boston Herald.

The Valiants of Virginia

Hallie Erminie Rives' Forthcoming Novel

Standing as the greatest achievement in the career of Hallie Erminie Rives, THE VALIANTS OF VIRGINIA comes to crown her efforts as a befitting token of success for one who has enriched the reading world with such popular contributions as Hearts Courageous, Satan Sanderson and The Castaway.

Noted for her love stories, Miss Rives has now woven a new love plot, so unusual and appealing that it far outshadows any of her earlier efforts. Untangling at the same time two filmy skeins of romance and weaving them into a remarkable texture; reading, as it were, the fragmentary love tragedy of a father into the very pages of his son's romance, and completing both at the same happy crisis—this is her latest and finest accomplishment.

THE VALIANTS OF VIRGINIA is a flowery romance of the immediate present unfolded in a setting of memories of a budding and colorful yesterday. The scenes are laid in Virginia and with her great gift of making her descriptions take form and life and sound, Miss Rives gives a brilliant picture of life at Damory Court, Rosewood, and neighboring estates during the period of Confederate romance and modern chivalry. The devotion to the picturesque practices of the ante-bellum days, the duels and tournaments and other customs of the era of American feudalism, is charmingly handled in this masterpiece that only an artist with the touch, the passion and the knowledge of Miss Rives could have painted. Virginia becomes a land of heart's desire, the home of true romance.

The descriptions pulsate into life. The sun really shines. The birds really sing in the trees. The scent of jessamine is in your own nostrils. You hear the veritable patter of the rain. You live the story over with the characters. You learn to know them and to love them. Greenville Female Seminary Simms, Rickey Snyder, Colonel Bristow, Dr. Southall, Matty Sue, Uncle Jefferson, Shirley Dandridge, Valiant and even Chum, his faithful dog, are as life-long friends when the story is ended. They are a permanent addition to the rich stores of memory.

The wonderful delineation of Virginia types and traits; of the worthy ideals and sterling qualities for which they stand; of the truth and purity of Virginia character, causes the reader to accept the story as a study, the romance as a reality. Story and romance are lifted to the plane of high drama in the play of life on life, of heart on heart. And the ever-twinkling spark of mirth imparts the element of relief to scenes that might otherwise be too intense, too poignant.

THE VALIANTS OF VIRGINIA stands in the forefront of modern fiction and is destined to be one of its most pronounced successes.

OLD IRVIN COBB

BY JAMES MONTEGOMERY FLAGG

WHO'S COBB AND WHY

By
ROBERT H. DAVIS

FROM AN ARTICLE
IN THE N. Y. SUN

"Gelett Burgess, in a lecture at Columbia College, said that Cobb was one of the ten great American humorists. Cobb ought to demand a recount. There are not ten humorists in the world, although Cobb is one of them.

The extraordinary thing about Cobb is that he can turn a burst of laughter into a funeral oration, a snicker into a shudder and a smile into a crime. He writes in octaves, striking instinctively all the chords of humor, tragedy, pathos and romance with either hand. Observe this man, in his thirty-sixth year, possessing gifts the limitations of which even he himself has not yet recognized.

* * * * *

"He (Cobb) has already written twenty times more than Bret Harte turned out during his entire career. He has made more people laugh and written better short stories. He has all of Harte's subtle and delicate feeling, and will, if he is spared, write better novels about the people of today than Bret Harte, with all his genius and imagination, wrote around the Pioneers. I know of no single instance where one man has shown such fecundity and quality as Irvin Cobb has so far evinced, and it is my opinion that his complete works at fifty will contain more good humor, more good short stories, and at least one bigger novel than the works of any other single contemporaneous figure."

SECURING A PERMANENT CUSTOMER

You know as well as we that when you can sell a stranger just the book he wants that he will come again.

We know that in describing our books in our Bulletins and circulars, it is wisest not to exaggerate the merits of our publications and to tell the public as nearly as possible just what our books are.

Therefore, for the stranger or for your regular customer, our Bulletins give just the sort of information they can rely upon.

We have asked you to circulate our advertising literature as widely as possible, and we should be glad to have you report the results, complaints or praise, if you receive any, so that we may be guided in future.

Our Holiday Bulletin will be ready next week, so that we trust you may make your plans accordingly.

TAPESTRIES: THEIR ORIGIN, HISTORY, AND RENAISSANCE.

By GEORGE LELAND HUNTER. With four full-page plates in color, and 150 half-tone engravings. Square 8vo, Cloth, $3.50 net. In a box. Postage, 25 cents. This is a fascinating book on a fascinating subject. It is written by a scholar whose passion for accuracy and original research did not prevent him from making a story easy to read. It answers the questions people are always asking as to how tapestries differ from paintings, and good tapestries from bad tapestries. In a word, the book is indispensable to lovers of art and literature in general, as well as to tapestry amateurs, owners and dealers. Nov. 1st.

THIRTEEN YEARS OF A BUSY WOMAN'S LIFE. By MRS. ALEC TWEEDIE, author of "The Maker of Modern Mexico: Porfirio Diaz." With 16 illustrations. $4.00 net. Postage, 15 cents. The book gives romantic and tragic peeps into the life of a woman reared in luxury who suddenly found herself obliged to live on a tiny income with two small children. A remarkable story with many personal sketches of some of the best-known men and women of the day—Col. Roosevelt, Gen. Diaz, Lord Strathcona, and others.

PEASANT ART IN RUSSIA. (International Studio Autumn Number, 1912.) 4to.

Cloth, $3.00 net. Postage, 35 cents. Paper, $2.50 net. Postage, 25 cents. This work is of unusual interest on account of the widespread popularity of the National art of this country. The unique character of the designs and the boldness of the coloring command the admiration of all interested in decorative art. The number contains about 500 illustrations, of which several are reproduced in facsimile colors.

THE CAREER OF BEAUTY DARLING. By DOLF WYLLARDE. 12mo. $1.30

net. Postage, 12 cents. Beauty was the adopted daughter of a workingwoman, Mrs. Darling. When she was fourteen, a wandering artist, struck by her great beauty, took rooms in her mother's cottage, persuaded the girl to pose for him and made a picture which became the rage of London. When he left the cottage, weeks later, Beauty was no longer the innocent, happy girl he had found her, and Mrs. Darling's wrath at this discovery sent her flying from her home up to London where she sought entrance at the stage-door of one of the well-known music halls of the great Metropolis. Beauty's subsequent career reads like a thrilling, dazzling romance.

THE ILLUSIONS OF MR. AND MRS. BRESSINGHAM. By GERARD BEN-

DALL. 12mo. $1.25 net. Postage, 12 cents. The story of a married couple who, having sought the world over for something to add piquancy to their prosaic lives, being, through an accident, suddenly deprived of the society of their friends and thrown together, found to their astonishment that each could afford the other the mental stimulus which all these years they had been in search of. The story is original and amusing.

HOMER'S ODYSSEY

A new translation in the Metre of the original by H. B. COTTERILL, M.A. The aim of the translator has been to produce an English version of the Odyssey in a form resembling the original as closely as possible in its rapidity, directness, naturalness and vigor. This handsome book contains 360 pages printed in red and black, and twenty-four reproductions of drawings by Mr. Patten Wilson. These pictures are drawn with pencil and are characterized by an exquisite finish and by extreme faithfulness to the spirit of Homer.

Large quarto, cloth, gilt, $5.50 net.

THE SERMON ON THE MOUNT

Each page beautifully illuminated in the missal style by ALBERTO SANGORSKI, and the whole reproduced in colors and printed in facsimile on ivory paper. We know of no gift book more suitable to the young of all ages than this handsome edition of the greatest of all discourses.

AN ARTIST IN CORFU

By SOPHIE ATKINSON. With 14 full-page colored illustrations. While Miss Atkinson begins her story with the legend of Nausicaa and all incidents connected with the history of the beautiful island, she is chiefly interested in the Corfu of to-day as a place of infinite peace and beauty. The remarkable and exceedingly handsome colored illustrations are a strong feature of the work.

4to, cloth. Cover design and end papers by the author. $4.50 net.

THE WORLD'S ROMANCES

Edited by RICHARD WILSON. The publishers announce with pleasure a new and attractive edition of these old world romances. The size is convenient, the books excellently printed, and beautifully illustrated in color by leading artists, and are substantially bound.

4to, cloth, with colored inset. Each, $1.00 net.

SIEGFRIED AND KRIEMHILD

The old Saga dealing with the beautiful and charming Kriemhild, the noble and gallant Siegfried, retold in very modern prose from the best sources. Illustrated with eight colored plates drawn by FRANK C. PAPE.

TRISTAN AND ISEULT

This famous old romance is retold in the form of a harper's story, and in the retelling loses none of its glamor and human pity. The eight colored plates are from drawings by GILBERT JAMES, and are entirely in keeping with the spirit of the story.

Other volumes in preparation.

About "Bunty"

From a "really-truly" boy's letter to the author.

To a Michigan boy friend [aged 13] Major M. J. Phillips sent a copy of his book, Bunty Prescott at Englishman's Camp. A few days later Major Phillips received a letter of which the following is an exact copy:

Oct. 13, '12 .

Dear Major:-

Your book is the best I have ever read. Not just because you are my friend, but because it is a real book. Not one of those almost probable ones where the hero steps in just at the last minute & saves the day & then marrys the queen or somebody else.

One by reading your book could be out in the "Big Woods" and just smell the pine and hemlock. I could see Bunty & his Dad hunting, fishing & all the other things.;

So let me state emphatically--It is the best boys book ever written. Mother & Dad said "It is the kind of litarachur that we want you to read," and "Major is a very good writer." And they know!

NEW YORK

Messrs. D. Appleton & Company Announce that on November 15th they will publish an important new novel by entitled "THE REEF." The book is Mrs. Wharton's most ambitious effort. It is a novel characterized to arouse widespread interest and is certain to become one of the notable fiction successes of the year.

THE REEF

Mrs. Wharton has again chosen fashionable society life for her theme, with several Americans residing in France as the principals. The novel presents a deep study in human nature with remarkably powerful and impressive character portrayals. As a romance it is satisfying. "THE REEF" promises to exceed in popularity her earlier great success, "The House of Mirth."

SIXTY YEARS OF TRADE BIBLIOGRAPHY—THE NEW UNITED STATES CATALOG.

THE publication of the great United States Catalog in its third issue, practically a new work, gives interesting occasion for a brief review of the history of American trade bibliography since its inception by O. A. Roorbach, nearly sixty years ago, including the work of James Kelly on the supplements to Roorbach, the great enterprise of Frederick Leypoldt in the American Catalogue of 1876 and its continuance in the quarto volumes up to 1900 and the new octavo series from that date as edited by his successor, R. R. Bowker, and the initial publication of the competing United States Catalog by H. W. Wilson Co. in the first edition of 1899 and the second edition of 1902, which have culminated in the present monumental work.

The original volume of Orville A. Roorbach covered in an octavo of 652 pages the publications of the American press from 1820-1852, and successive supplements, covered the periods 1852-1855, 1855-1858, and 1858-1861. James Kelly took up the work and published supplements covering the periods 1861-1866 and 1866-1871. As the centennial year, 1876, approached, Roorbach being dead and Kelly discouraged by lack of financial support, Frederick Leypoldt undertook his great task of publishing the American Catalogue of books in print in 1876, which, in its two quarto volumes, aggregated 1486 pages, scheduling the issues of about nine hundred publishing houses, numbering 70,000 entries in the author and title volume, and half as many more in the subject volume, indicating the record of approximately 40,000 books. This work, originally priced at $25, actually cost $27,622, without including any compensation to its editor, and the returns, when the edition of one thousand copies was finally sold, the later copies at an increased price, reached but $27,321. The four quarto supplements edited by R. R. Bowker covered, for 1876-1884, about 30,000 books; for 1884-1890, 28,000 books; for 1890-1895, 25,000 books; and for 1895-1900, 27,500 books. In 1890 there was outlined a proposal for an American Catalogue for the nineteenth century, to be issued from this office at its close, going back of Roorbach and covering the material from 1800 to 1900 at a subscription price of $100, and an estimated cost exceeding $50,000; but although some hundreds of dollars were spent in getting together material, no further progress was made in this undertaking. Of the octavo series of the American Catalog for the twentieth century, the volume for 1900-1905 (really five years) covered approximately 42,000 books; that for 1905-1907, 25,000 books; and that for 1908-1910, 35,000 books. With this volume the American Catalog series was discontinued, under a friendly co-ordination intended to concentrate support on the enterprise which Mr. Wilson had in mind in his third edition. In 1902, as a companion to the Publishers' Trade List Annual, an index volume in octavo, of 1102 pages, practically a catalogue of books in print, was issued at the low price of $6 net, and to this supplements were added for 1903 and 1904, but, though such an index had been much called for, its support did not prove adequate to its continuance. This brings the story of American trade bibliography up to this third issue of the United States Catalog.

The huge quarto which embodies this remarkable enterprise is a monumental work in more senses than one. It is of slightly larger size than the latest edition of Webster's Dictionary, and though somewhat less thick, exceeds it in the actual number of pages, 2837, as against a total of 2700 of the new Webster. This makes it probably the largest book published, with the exception of the Publishers' Trade List Annual, a compilation of trade catalogues, exceeding six thousand octavo pages, which is not a unified volume in either editorial or typographical sense. These 2837 pages, each of three columns in six-point, or nonpareil, type, running 115 or more lines to the column, give an aggregate close upon one million lines, falling only a few thousand short, and the amount of typesetting is probably greater than that in any of the works referred to. It is estimated that the work contains 450,000 entries, covering 150,000 books; there is no computation of the number of authors, but it probably does not fall short of 75,000. This represents a terrific activity in book production, which will probably confine future trade bibliography to the annual and five-yearly supplements which Mr. Wilson announces, for this great undertaking can surely have no rival.

The work covers the issue of at least three thousand publishing houses, and includes a large share of United States government publications, so far as listed by the Superintendent of Documents, and a very large proportion of the publications of universities and publishing societies. In the author entries, full names, as far as practicable, and pseudonyms are given, and to this is appended birth and death date. While the author entries are condensed, they give adequate information as to price and publisher, and entries are repeated under title and very liberally under subjects, with abundant cross-references. But the most remarkable feature of all is the inclusion in the author entry of the number of the Library of Congress card, for which purpose the entire copy and afterwards the entire proofs had been sent to Washington, with the co-operation of the catalog card division of the Library of Congress, gratuitously afforded. This has almost doubled the value of the catalog as a working tool for librarians.

The scope of the work may be judged by the fact that the topic "Bible" includes one hundred columns, or over thirty-three pages; "Shakespeare," thirty-three columns; "Longfellow," five columns, and so on. The fourteen pages of names of publishers appended to the general alphabet cover over three thousand names, the full names and addresses of the minor publishers being given in the body of the work under the author or title entry. Various tests of the work have resulted in thorough confirmation of its completeness and accuracy, only one omission of a book actually in print having so far been discovered by the reviewer. That all this has been accomplished and the work produced bound within ten months, from January 1, 1912, the date to which this record is brought, is indeed a marvel of editorial enterprise, the like of which has not been seen in bibliography.

It is now for the publishing and bookselling trade and the libraries to support this work, which has, of course, been of immense cost, roughly that estimated for the American Catalog for the nineteenth century. We understand that above $20,000 had been invested prior to January 1, 1912, and before a single line had been set, the material of the annual cumulations of 1910-1911 excepted. At the price of $36, it will require the sale of at least two thousand copies to pay for the outlay. No publisher or bookseller should think he can get along without it, aside from the justice of supporting an enterprise of such professional and national importance, and the smallest library should find a saving to its administration and a gain to its constituency much above what seems the high price of the volume. As a matter of fact, for the amount of bibliographical outlay and typographical cost, the price is lower than for any bibliography yet presented in the market, and when the possible field is considered, lower, indeed, than the great dictionaries and encyclopedias. The work will be of permanent value, and with this in view, the binding, according to American Library Association specifications, has been made unusually good. There could not be a better investment for any bookstore or library than this creditable and monumental work.

The title page and preface of this work give due credit to its chief compiler, Miss Marion E. Potter, and to her assistants, Misses Emma L. and Louise Teich and Bertha Tannehill. But the larger credit is still due to Mr. H. W. Wilson personally for the organizing skill which has made this volume possible. It is only fair that he should have due recognition and reward.

THERE is some question as to the statement in our editorial of last week, and in Secretary Putnam's report to the American Publishers' Copyright League, as to the status of copyright in the British self-governing dominions pending the acceptance of the new British code, which went into operation July 1, 1912. Section 25 provides for acceptance or independent legislation by the self-governing dominions, and Section 36 repeals all previous acts, with a few minor exceptions, entered in the repeal schedule. But this last section has a saving clause, suspending such repeal in the self-governing dominions pending action on the new imperial code. The effect of this clause is not beyond question, but it would seem to indicate that the status of those dominions remains for the present as it was previous to the new imperial legislation.

HOW TO SELL MORE BOOKS.*

It seems to me rather presumptuous on my part to stand before this company and speak upon the topic proposed by the genial chairman of the entertainment committee, Mr. Charles C. Shoemaker. Since accepting his invitation, several months ago, to prepare a paper on this topic, I have neither eaten nor slept, and like Diogenes of old, who sought diligently for an honest man, so have I sought diligently for an adequate answer to this puzzling question.

I am somewhat in the position of a German who was asked by a traveler to direct him to the railway station. After considerable hesitation, he admitted that he didn't know. The gentleman pursued his way down the street, and after having gone several blocks, hearing someone running behind him, turned, to discover the German friend from whom he had made inquiry, who, out of breath, exclaimed: "Excuse me, sir, but you asked me to direct you to the railway station, and I said I didn't know. Just after leaving you I met my brother and asked him, but he didn't know, either." That is my condition exactly; having been asked to tell you something I didn't know, I questioned the publishers, traveling men and some of the gentlemen in the retail trade, only to find that they, too, didn't know.

Now having confessed my ignorance, I will proceed. We begin, of course, with the assumption that we ought to sell more books, and I know that the publishers will agree that the assumption is correct. As it is easier to enumerate reasons why we are not selling more books than to discover new and efficient methods of increasing their sale, it seems to me to be a reasonable procedure to enumerate briefly some of the causes.

WHY ARE BOOKS LOSING GROUND?

I will not endeavor to classify nor give these causes in the order of their importance, but just as they occur to me. It is fashionable in these days to "let George do it." It is also fashionable to blame every ill on the high cost of living. As a Bull Mooser, I could probably tell you something about that, but have no desire to start a political argument. However, as one of the reasons why we do not sell more books, I present as Exhibit A, the high cost of living.

Incongruous as it may seem for Exhibit B, I mention the increasing use of the automobile.

Third, the absence of any large leisure class (and here I do not refer to gentlemen of the road—"hobos").

Fourth, the disappearance of the old-fashioned home, and the growth of the modern apartment idea.

* A paper read before the Philadelphia Booksellers' Association.

As a matter of fact, this ought to increase the leisure of a large number of people, and perhaps may do so, but from my observation it would seem rather to develop a migratory spirit that makes the possession of books cumbersome and undesirable.

Fifth, a multiplicity of magazines and newspapers. Frankly, now, if the average man reads with any degree of closeness the daily newspapers, the Saturday Evening Post, Literary Digest, or some monthly magazine, the time which he may devote to reading would be pretty well occupied.

These conditions are largely general, however, being applicable to many businesses, and are not peculiar to the book trade. There are a number of other reasons that might be added, but with some of these I prefer to deal in a positive rather than a negative manner.

I do not desire, for instance, to discuss that rather old-fashioned, intolerant, contemptuous view of the bookseller as an impractical man and a dreamer, who doesn't want to make profits and is fifty years behind the times in his business methods. There is undoubtedly room for improvement, but that could probably be said of nearly any business, and I believe that to-day booksellers are as wide-awake and up to the minute as any other class of merchants, and the fact that few of them are rich may not be due to their lack of ability, but rather to the kind of merchandise they have chosen to exploit.

THE ADVERTISING PROBLEM.

There is one thing, however, that a bookseller does not know how to do, and that is to advertise, and for that matter, neither does the publisher. When you ask me how to sell more books, I answer advertise. When you ask me how to advertise, I say, "I don't know," and certainly this is the golden secret to which must be found the key if our question as to how to sell more books is to be adequately answered.

We have had several demonstrations of the value of advertising on a large scale devoted to one special proposition, one author's work, and we are, I understand, to have that demonstration repeated this fall. If our problem is only to sell more books, perhaps our Western friend has discovered the golden key. A little more specialization might be a desirable thing. We are told that this is the day of specialists, but the charge of being a specialist could hardly be brought against the average publisher. Our efforts are spread out over an interminable area, and are extensive, rather than intensive. As to this matter of advertising, I am inclined to believe, after having talked with many publishers and their representatives, that more money is spent with less concrete result on book advertising than in advertising any other kind of merchandise.

May I say right here that I believe results can be secured by co-operative advertising between the publisher and the individual bookseller. I admire the plan of Doubleday, Page & Co. to stand for one-half the cost of any specific ad. of their publications proposed by the individual bookseller.

LOCALLY IMPRINTED ADVERTISING VERY IMPORTANT.

The name of the local bookseller appearing on an ad., in my judgment, enhances its value manifold, and does not detract from the general publicity value of that advertisement. A campaign for publicity on the part of the combined stores and departments in this city would undoubtedly result in a larger volume of business. I am safe in saying that in Philadelphia, or any large city, are to be found thousands of men and women who could not tell offhand the location of a single bookstore or department in the city. Then, too, such a campaign could be directed to educating the masses as to the value and delight of good reading. Books are considered a luxury. It should be proven they are a necessity to an individual that would get the most out of life. We do not need to cater less to people of wealth and culture, but more to the poor and ignorant. Young men and young women, boys and girls, should be inspired to possess books of their own and shown how easy and inexpensive they are to acquire. The books we sell are filled with admirable and convincing statements as to the value of good reading; that would make excellent advertising copy. We bookmen take it for granted that everyone is more or less interested in general reading, but such is not the case. Just a short time ago I discovered a keen, alert business man with whom we had been doing business for a number of years, who had not read a book in twenty years, and he was not as unique in that as you might think.

DOES BOOK ADVERTISING NOW LACK "PUNCH"?

In all other kinds of advertising we find direct argument why we should use a certain brand of soap or eat a certain kind of breakfast food, but only occasionally can we find in book advertising any concrete or valid reason why we should read or buy some certain book. Certainly, much of our book advertising is inane and lacks the "punch." I have often thought it would be a good idea if some of our authors, skilled in analysis and what might be called psychology of the crowd, should turn their attention to fact instead of fancy, and write an advertisement of the compelling kind that would make a person feel "I must get that book." Our author would, I believe, find that work almost as profitable as writing a best-seller.

Most of our advertising seems to be directed to a rather small circle of readers already familiar with books and authors and publishers and their reputations, and but rarely to that larger circle beyond, where lies not only our opportunity, but our obligation, for in seeking to develop new readers it is stimulating to feel that it is not altogether for their exploitation and our profit, but that it is mutually beneficial. Whenever I make the acquaintance of a really good book I feel an obligation to pass on to others a share of my own satisfaction and delight in it. My suggestion for a united campaign of publicity is not only feasible, but needful, and could, I believe, be made profitable. There are, of course, many problems that it presents possible of satisfactory solution.

The evening could profitably be spent in considering this one subject of advertising, for I believe it to be the kernel of our problem as to how to sell more books. Beyond suggesting an intelligent use of the ammunition the publisher provides in the way of catalogues, circulars, post cards and posters, I will proceed to several other points that directly affect the sale of books.

"FEWER BOOKS AND BETTER."

A plank was recently inserted in the platform of one of our publishing houses that reads, "Fewer and better books." That plank suits me right down to the ground. I have since heard the criticism that this particular plank was a "campaign promise," and that their big waste-basket did not get all that was coming to it. Whether that be true or not, I feel like taking off my hat to the concern that is wise enough to see an "issue" before it runs them down. You gentlemen may disagree with me, but I am suspicious that one of the growing ills of our business is an overproduction. Even though we learned to conserve the waste and imprints were issued as a by-product, there is still a king's ransom being squandered every year in publishing books. To supply a need? Well, hardly that, unless it is the publisher's need, and I did not say that it was his money that was being squandered (now, I am talking to booksellers only); it may be yours.

We have all been told many times by the publisher or his representatives the precise method of retailing books, and I have never heard of a retailer who was too bashful or even made any charge for the advice he gives the publisher as to how to conduct his business, what he ought and what he ought not to publish, and how. It will not be amiss for me, therefore, to take a few shots at this business of publishing; then "Mr. Ashton-Kirk" can point out where I err.

I maintain there are too many books published, but want to add, and too few good ones. It has seemed to me that many publishers, in order to provide grist for the mill and maintain a certain volume of business, are too willing to accept manuscripts that, were it another sort of merchandise, would be classed as short weight or adulterated. Perhaps some day we will have at our national capitol a good literature department.

The books to which I refer are not by any means in the class that might be termed "a gambler's chance." On the other hand, they are, as a rule, "sure things," and by that I mean, given a fair dress, the book will sell (to some 2000-odd booksellers) a small edition, enough to cover costs and carry a proportion of overhead charges; it may be lessening the load or insuring a profit on some worthier book. With the innocent assistance of the bookseller, books of this character sometimes really get as far as the public, and they don't make for increased selling; but that is not the worst feature. A multiplicity of books, many of this uncertain quantity, dissipates the dealer's energy, uses the time, the space, the capital that should be devoted to strengthening, building up and extending trade on a foundation of profit that is scarcely established by distributing these flimsy, cheaply constructed factory-made books that masquerade in attractive dress under the name of literature.

Let us really have fewer books and better. Good books are all too few. To discourage, by the absent treatment, the class of books referred to, will certainly result in the sale of more books, as the public of to-day wants its money's worth, and is sometimes rather critical of the publisher's ability to interpret that value.

OTHER BOOK-SELLING PROBLEMS.

In addition to giving value for money received, and securing the right kind of publicity, there are other things that contribute to the ability to sell more books, and I shall treat of them briefly.

The first is geographical. Locate the people. That is fundamental, but until recently was hardly possible, and even now is rather difficult advice to follow.

The second is service. That word covers a multitude of sins, but, of course, I mean good service, and by good service is meant adequate stocks. Intelligent attendants, which includes courtesy, unfailing kindness, promptness, meekness, self-reliance and all the other Christian virtues that only a book clerk understands; and I ought to add, free delivery and cheerful exchanges.

May I add just a word here for the much-maligned book clerk. No better paid than the average sales person, they are expected to be walking encyclopedias, filled with information on the most abstruse subjects, ready to discuss science, history or religion, to give the plot, or a resumé of the latest fiction and a critical estimate on the latest volume of poems or essays. He is expected to be familiar with the obscurest places and people of the world. In fact, he must know just a little more than a college president (nothing personal is intended), and not quite so much as the customer.

When we arrive at the millennium—I mean the day of fewer and better books—the book clerk may find an opportunity to study the art of real salesmanship, of which so many of his brethren on the road seem to think he is so totally ignorant.

PROPER MERCHANDISING ESSENTIAL.

The third requirement might be termed proper merchandising. Some goods will sell themselves if you give them a chance. Most goods, however, do not sell from under the counter as well as they otherwise might. A proper and attractive display is not only important, but is an essential. Books are no exception to this general rule. It often happens that a book that will not sell from one certain spot in the store will sell readily from another. Even then it is sometimes necessary to display a little salesmanship. Window displays are important in proportion to the number of passersby.

And, fourthly, as the preacher says, and with this I'll close, it is, after all, in a large measure the personal equation that counts. Create a personal relationship with the customers, study them and their interest, and cater to them; make a record of their personal likes and dislikes, associations, family connections; in fact, know whatever can be known of them; telephone them of new books, send them reviews. In other words, keep in touch with your trade, seeking all the while to render the best service, and this is a better basis for competition than is that of price, and by judicious advertising and circularizing. Create new readers, attracting them to your store and imparting your own enthusiasm for the goods you have to sell.

The bookseller can talk shop with probably less offense than any other merchant, and if he regards the distribution of books in the light of a benefaction, can find ample opportunity to do missionary work in the church, at the club or in his neighborhood by talking books and stimulating interest in the rich mines of literature, with their great store of treasures that lie at the hand of every man.

THE FLOOD OF BOOKS.

WHO IS TO BLAME FOR THE PRESENCE OF THE SUPERFLUOUS BOOK—THE AUTHORS, THE PUBLISHERS, OR THE PUBLIC?

Who is to blame for this terrible and growing superfluity of books, asks the London Nation—author, publisher, or public? Or are all alike helpless in the clutches of a business system speeding up by some dire law of evolution toward an ever-increasing overproduction? The present pace is killing. In 1901 the output of new books was 5000, enough, one might suppose, to satisfy the legitimate needs of our not wholly intellectual nation. Ten years later, however, the number had swollen to 8500, an increase of 70 per cent.

Nor does this percentage measure the full dimensions of the enhanced supply of books. For it has been coincident with a prodigious output of cheap reprints, and a general cheapening of large quantities of the new fiction and educational books. It would be safe to say that the number of printed books put out last year was more than double that of 1901. Nor can the increase be put down merely or mainly to a morbid craving for novel reading. For though we still continue to produce new novels at the rate of six or seven per working day, the last year or two has shown a decided slackening in this line of production. Biography, travel, belles-lettres, and science are advancing far more rapidly. To some this may appear a satisfactory testimony to the genuine spread of culture. Nor can it be denied that the large sale of cheap editions of great masterpieces of literature and science evinces an opening of the popular mind to ideas, which in itself is most commendable.

But it is precisely because of these wider signs of a desire for culture that we regret so deeply this flooding of the book market. For culture is a matter of discrimination and of quality, and this flood imposes quantity and inhibits discrimination. To catch the public eye, to tickle the superficial curiosity, to tempt the buyer, not to satisfy, improve, or stimulate the mind, is the avowed object of those responsible for the supply of books. In no branch of consumption is the buyer so much at the mercy of the seller. In other branches he has valid personal experience to help him. He has bought the same article many times before, or something very like it. With a book it is different. He only buys it because he has never bought it before and he cannot tell what it is worth to him till after he has paid for it. Nor is there any one to tell him.

A man of trained intelligence and reading, no doubt, is able, within limits, to discriminate, appraise, and prophesy; he is not the dupe of a specious title or a faked reputation. But the great mass of our expanding reading public have no defense against the artful pressure of the trader interested to induce them to buy the largest quantity of books, irrespective of all considerations of inherent worth. Popular education is not real enough to furnish any adequate safeguards; it has lifted the minds of great numbers of people to a level which leaves them a helpless prey to vapid sentimentalism in literature, art, and politics, and to charlatanism in science. So the book trade sinks to the condition of the drug trade, mainly engaged in palming off large quantities of well-labelled goods upon a credulous sheep-public by specious advertisement. This could not well be done when reading and the intellectual life were for the wealthy few. A publisher then regarded it as his mission to search out writers of merit whose books he felt himself entitled to recommend personally to his educated patrons, who would detect and curse him if he deceived them into paying a guinea for a bad book. A very few such publishers still remain, enjoying in some qualified way this distinctively professional character of literary guarantor. But the general tendency has been to convert the publisher into a tradesman, whose business is to sell the largest quantity of books he can induce the public to think they want to buy. Thus larger and larger numbers of books pour from the press, with less and less effective checks upon their quality, while the life even of a fairly good book grows shorter and shorter.

Nor is the guidance which the publisher has dropped taken up by the bookseller. On the contrary, the bookseller has become more and more a merely automatic channel for the retail marketing of inferior books. The history of the retail trade is one of prolonged degradation. There is a striking passage in the "Life of Alexander Macmillan," showing how far that process had gone nearly half a century ago. In a letter written to Mr. Gladstone, in 1868, he says:

Whereas in former years there used to be many booksellers who kept good stocks of solid standard books—one or more in every important town in England—and these booksellers lived by selling books, the case is now that in country towns few live by selling books; the trade has become so profitless that it is generally the appendage to a toy shop or a Berlin-wool warehouse, and a few trashy novels, selling for a shilling, with glaring colors, suiting the flashy contents; and the bookseller who studies what books are good and worth recommending to his customers has ceased to exist.

Though a recent turn in the tide has brought back a large number of small retailers, concerned wholly or chiefly with selling books, the point of the final criticism remains unimpaired.

In the drug trade it is proposed to restrain noxious superfluity by imposing a legal obligation to give a true description of the materials upon each packet or bottle. Quite recently a practice has grown up of printing on the cover of many books a tempting contents bill. We fear, however, that no legal compulsion could convert this into a true description of contents. Indeed, it appears quite hopeless to check or regulate the output of superfluous books by intervening at the distributing stage. Nor is it easy to suppose that anything can be achieved by appealing to the self-restraint of the authors. For an author is the victim of a perpetual illusion to the effect that his book is wanted, and as long as he can get a publisher to back him up in this belief he will go on writing books. There is, moreover, no reliable economic check upon his creative output. The producer of ordinary wares demands some tolerable certainty of remuneration for his effort; he is not in business "for his health," nor to be fobbed off by payment in the shape of some possibility of fame. Whereas every publisher is aware that nothing is easier than to tempt an innocent author into putting out prolonged and arduous mental effort into a work which has not the remotest chance of earning him a living wage. This generalization, perhaps, requires one qualification, which goes to the root of the matter. To the publisher, even as to the author, there always shines out in the darkness of the night in which he lives some brilliant star of fortune. One of his books (how can he possibly tell which?) is going to turn out an immense success, and some share of the vast profits which accrue will reach the author. An interesting correspondence in the Daily News seems to designate this sudden, unforeseen event as the chief cause of the superfluity of books. Every publisher must continually keep baiting his hook in hopes of catching the great fish. He must go on accepting, evoking, and publishing as many books as he can get hold of, on the blind chance that among them may be the prize book which will bring him in the £10,000 which an anonymous novel is said recently to have secured for its dazzled publisher. As the number of new books swells, the proportion which the prize book bears to the aggregate naturally diminishes.

Is there no limit to the process in this dwindling chance? A well informed writer in the Daily News says "No." Each publisher, he thinks, must continue at an accelerating pace this quest for the golden book, so long as other publishers keep racing. An effective agreement among rival publishers to regulate the output appears as impracticable as the new writer in the present tidal rush? The literary tasters, the critics and reviewers, are utterly unable to cope with the flood of new books which flow in rapid succession before their eyes. They cannot pretend to apply satisfactory tests. An inept title, a dull preface, an unattractive table of contents, sends to immediate and eternal oblivion every week scores of really meritorious books. For sheer mental weariness the critic is led to avail him-agreement of nations on a reduction of armaments. On this point, however, the correspondent does not quite convince us. If, as he contends, with every increase of his output beyond a reasonable limit the actual net returns show a considerable falling off, it ought to be possible for some new publisher to build up a profitable trade by limiting his output to the production of good books alone, supposing him to have the intelligence to know what are the books which the more discriminate public will agree to recognize as good. In a word, it might be good business to take up publishing once more as a skilled craftsman instead of a gambler or a grocer. Until and unless this is feasible, it seems that author and reader alike are crushed in the cylinders of the printing press. For what chance has a work of genius, or even of high talent, by a self of every special opportunity, not for discovering, but for ignoring a new book. Thus the weight of the burden breaks down the only testing apparatus between publisher and public.

In default of authentic guardians, the large reading public is fain to place itself more and more at the disposal of the library clerk, who exerts a tyranny alike humorous and dangerous over the ever-growing number of those who like to handle books. It is to his interest to keep books circulating, to repress eccentric demands, and to persuade readers to take away the books it is most profitable to the trade that they should think they want to read. In the last resort, then, the flood of books must be attributed to the indiscriminate voracity of the half-literate public, and is only to be checked by an advance of selective intelligence in readers. The first stage in popular literary education naturally evokes a superstitious desire to amass quantities of low-grade intellectual and emotional experience, using books for this purpose, as the nouveau riche uses material forms of property for self-display and self-realization. Taste, discrimination, nice selection, and rejection of books may come later. For the comparative insusceptibility to culture of the classes who have enjoyed large intellectual opportunities for several generations must be taken as presumptive, though not final, evidence of some inherent difficulty in the escape of the British mind from the economy of quantity, which we call materialism, into that of quality, which is another name for culture. Until this open question is answered by the course of events, we cannot say whether there is any remedy for the flood of books.

A PRINTING AND ADVERTISING EXPOSITION.

COINCIDENT with the annual meetings of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association and the Associated Press at New York during the week of April 19, 1913, an exhibition of the printing, advertising and allied trades will be held at the new Grand Central Palace in that city. This building was planned and built three years ago especially for exhibition purposes, and already a large number of representative publishers and firms manufacturing publishing machinery have taken space for exhibits.

A majority of the owners, business managers and superintendents of the newspapers of the country will be sent tickets of admission and an urgent invitation to attend, as well as the membership of such associations as the Printers' League of America, Association of American Advertisers, International Association of Manufacturing Photo Engravers, Advertising Men's League, Quoin Club, the Typothetæ and members of the different trades unions connected with the printing, bookbinding and advertising industries. Each exhibitor will also be furnished with a liberal allotment of tickets.

Lectures of an educational nature will be given every afternoon and evening during the run of the show by prominent men in the printing and advertising fields, among them: William C. Freeman, advertising manager, Evening Mail; H. N. Casson, vice-president, H. K. McCann Co.; R. W. Floyd, Woman's World Publishing Co.; David Gibson, Cleveland, O.; A. A. Christian, advertising director, Gimbel Bros.; Joseph P. Day, real estate, New York; A. F. Mackay, advertising manager, Lanston Monotype Co.; etc.

A press staff and publicity bureau will be maintained, and the Typothetæ has been invited to install a comprehensive, educational cost exhibit.

The offices of the exposition are in the Fifth Avenue Building, New York City, Harry A. Cochrane, president. Among the men on the advisory committees co-operating are L. A. Hornstein, manager, publicity department, Mergenthaler Linotype Co.; E. J. O'Hayer, Jr.,

vice-president, Miehle Printing Press Mfg. Co.; Charles Francis, president, Printers' League of America; John Clyde Oswald, editor, American Printer; Elbert Hubbard, East Aurora, N. Y.; William C. Freeman, advertising manager, Evening Mail; David G. Evans, Curtis Publishing Co.; J. W. Adams, manager, Daily Newspaper Club; R. Wentworth Floyd, Woman's World.

SOL LICHTENSTEIN TO SELL HIS BOOKS.

SOL LICHTENSTEIN, the former prominent maker of books at the various race tracks and well known to the rare book trade as a collector, announces the sale of his fine furniture, bronzes, bric-a-brac, and part of his library at the Fifth Avenue Art Galleries. It will take five sessions to disperse these things. The books comprise first editions, extra illustrated works, fine bindings, sets of eminent authors, hand-colored plates, limited and large paper editions, édition de luxe and association copies, Americana, New York City items, the drama, Shakespeareana, facetiæ, and curiosa. Many of the books were purchased from the late Henry W. Poor collection and the Robert Hoe library sales.

Mr. Lichtenstein's taste ran chiefly and naturally to sporting books, and he obtained at high figures works of Pierce Egan and books illustrated by young Cruikshank. He bought under the initials "S. L.," and only the initiated knew that the good-natured, gray-haired owner of them was one of the kings of the race-track world. His latest purchases were at the Hoe sales, but he has not been buying as freely as he once did. No reason is given for his dispersal now of his books and art treasures other than that he has grown tired of being a bibliophile and collector. Another suggestion is that the closing of the race tracks in New York has put a dent in his erstwhile plethoric pocketbook.

ANNUAL EXHIBITION OF THE BOOKS OF THE YEAR.

THE seventh annual exhibition of the books of the year will be opened at the National Arts Club, 15 Gramercy Park, New York City, Wednesday evening, November 13, at 9 p.m. Brief addresses will be made by Walter H. Page, Charles H. Caffin and Walter Gilliss.

A GREAT NEW LIBRARY FOR LEIPZIG.

THE Berlin correspondent of the London Standard says:

"The news that £150,000 is to be spent on a new library for Leipzig, and that between them the State of Saxony and the city of Leipzig are to contribute £10,000 annually for its maintenance, cannot surprise those who know what an important place books hold in the life of Leipzig or what a predominant position this Saxon town holds in the book world. If ever there were a book publishers' town, it is Leipzig. Already in the middle of the eighteenth century its book trade dominated that of the rest of Germany.

"Some fifty years ago its relative importance only had increased. Its book trade then was valued at nearly half a million sterling yearly, and nearly 130 booksellers had shops and 30 book printers had presses in the city. Long before that there was the Book Publishers' Exchange, which managed a Booksellers' Fair at Eastertide, when some 500 or 600 German booksellers would come to buy the novelties of the day and settle up their accounts.

"To-day the spread of popular education has given the Leipzig book trade almost gigantic proportions. There are between 900 and 1000 book publishers and booksellers in the city, and at least 150 book printers. The Booksellers' Fair continues every year with increasing success. Leipzig, it may be said, is one of the centers of cheap books, and here is issued the remarkable Reklam series; all of pocket size, sold, according to thickness, at a price of 2½d. per unit, and including unpublished novelties, such as modern court memoirs and translations from the Greek and Latin classics, as well as a full selection of German literature.

"So far, Leipzig has possessed only a small Book Industry Museum, a handsome but rather small building behind the Booksellers' Exchange. Here, with a statue of Gutenberg at the entrance, is a collection of examples of ancient and modern printing and representations of the thousand and one processes connected with book printing and binding, which make the museum second only to the famous Plantin Museum at Antwerp.

"It has long been considered, however, that this was not enough to recognize the importance of the industry and commerce in Leipzig. The booksellers of Leipzig determined to go further, and, rather than look back upon the past, they have decided to underline their importance of to-day by forming a library that shall contain a copy of every line of reading matter, be it in German or in foreign tongue, that may be printed and sold within the German Empire from January 1, 1913, onwards. The building, erected on land granted free of cost by the city, is to cost about £25,000, and contributions towards the yearly expenditure are promised to the extent of £4250 by the State of Saxony and £5750 by the city.

"One point of special interest is that the library will not be used for several years, except in a very slight degree. Nothing but new publications will be stocked, so that the staff will be able to begin their catalogue on a clean sheet. The Royal Library in Berlin, the most important in Germany, can therefore look forward with certainty to still many more years of undisputed sovereignty, though it is estimated that before many years the number of volumes it possesses will be surpassed by the collection at Leipzig."

OVERHEARD A PROPOS OF THE NEW "U. S. CATALOG."

"Don't you think that new 'Wilson' looks more like Taft than Wilson?"

TRADE ASSOCIATIONS.

PITTSBURGH BOOKSELLERS' ASSOCIATION.

At the annual meeting of the Pittsburgh Booksellers' and Stationers' Association, held recently, the following officers were elected: President, A. W. McCloy, Jr.; first vice-president, Elmer McKeown; second vice-president, E. L. Stevenson; treasurer, Robert Crawford; recording secretary, Christian Kirsh; corresponding secretary, C. H. Clough.

OBITUARY NOTES.

GENERAL HENRY BEEBE CARRINGTON, writer, lawyer and soldier, died at his home in Hyde Park, Boston, October 26. Gen. Carrington was born in Wallingford, Conn., in 1824. During the Civil War he was Adjutant-General of the State Militia. In 1870 he was detailed as Professor of Military Science at Wabash College, and later was employed by the government to treat with the Indians. He was the author of "Crisis Thoughts," "The Six Nations," "Beacon Lights of Patriotism," "Washington, the Soldier," "Lafayette and American Independence," and other books dealing with American history.

COPYRIGHT NOTES.

COPYRIGHT WITH TUNIS.

By proclamation of the President, dated October 4, Tunis has been added to the list of countries with which the United States is in reciprocal copyright relations. Copyright controlling the mechanical reproduction of a copyrighted musical work is especially excepted from the provisions of the proclamation.

POSTAL MATTERS.

"DRESS REHEARSAL" FOR PARCELS POST.

ARRANGEMENTS have been made by the Post Office Department to hold over this year the extra force of clerks, carriers and delivery wagons which are put on each year to handle the Christmas mail until January 1. The parcels post will be inaugurated January 1. The extra staff on duty the week before will enable the department to have a "dress rehearsal" of the parcels post service and everything in readiness.

According to directions to local post offices, sent out last week by the Post Office Department, parcels post packages will be "mailable" only at main post offices and branches—not at all numbered sub-stations in large cities. No provision is yet made for carrier collection of parcels, and it is not clear whether the old parcels street boxes can be used for mailing.

The special parcels post stamps must be used on all packages, and the name and address of the sender must be plainly affixed. Otherwise, packages will not be accepted.

"PUBLICITY RIDER" CASE ADVANCED.

THE Supreme Court of the United States, on October 28, fixed December 2 for argument on the test case brought by the New York Journal of Commerce involving the constitutionality of the so-called "publicity rider" passed at the last session of Congress. The application for advancement of the case on the Supreme Court calendar was filed a week before, the Attorney General joining with counsel for the publishers in the request.

POST OFFICE ASKS $12,000,000 MORE.

THE postal service next year will cost $283,805,760, making it by far the most important, in income and outgo, of all the government departments. Appropriations needed by the Post Office for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1913, propose an increase of $12,086,909 over the last appropriations.

Nearly $10,000,000 of the increase will be required to put into effect the postal legislation enacted this year, including $7,240,000 for the parcels post system and $1,350,000 for the organization required under the new eight-hour law. Only $2,600,000 is added to current appropriations, or an increase of less than 1 per cent., the lowest annual rate of increase in the history of the postal service.

UNEXPECTED RESULT OF "PUBLICITY RIDER."

ON October 29 the Post Office Department gave out the following statement:

The Philadelphia Tageblatt, a daily newspaper printed in German, has "advertised" itself out of the second class mail privilege, or assumed a position which under the law would put it out.

It evidently took offence at the semi-annual return provision made by Congress in the post office appropriation act requiring paid editorials and news stories to be labelled "advertisement" and not being able, as it says, to tell in every case whether its matter is or is not advertisement decided to mark every editorial, news story or other matter contained in its columns as an advertisement.

Now, the second class mail laws deny the cent a pound rate to newspapers and periodicals "primarily designed for advertising purposes," and since this publication has made itself wholly an advertising sheet it has by its own words denied to itself the benefit of the pound rate.

Whether Postmaster-General Hitchcock will see fit to visit upon it the effect of its act performed in a moment of irritation remains to be seen.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE Century Magazine will publish serially Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett's new novel, "T. Tembarom."

THE Stationers' Board of Trade has been elected to membership in the new national Chamber of Commerce.

LADY CLIFFORD (Mrs. Henry de la Pasture) has written a new novel, "The Honorable Mrs. Garry," published by E. P. Dutton & Co.

ANOTHER collection of Lady Gregory's Irish plays, "New Comedies," including "The Bogie Man," "The Full Moon," "Coats," "Damer's Gold," and "McDonough's Wife," is announced by Putnam.

MRS. EDITH WHARTON's new novel, "The Reef," to be published by D. Appleton & Co. on November 15, is a story of society life, with several Americans living in France as its central figures.

JOHN STUART THOMSON, author of "The Chinese," which Bobbs-Merrill published several years ago, has recently completed "Revolutionized China," which will be published toward the end of this year.

FOR the boy who loves a wholesome out-of-door story, the Reilly & Britton Company recommend "Bunty Prescott at Englishman's Camp," a story of good sport and interesting incident, by Major M. J. Phillips.

HARPER & BROTHERS are publishing this week: "The Ways of the Planets," by Martha E. Martin; "Stories by Lincoln," by Anthony Gross; "The Buccaneers," by Don Seitz; and "The Green C," by Josephine A. Meyer.

MOFFAT, YARD & COMPANY have just published "The American Mediterranean," a comprehensive and interesting study of the Caribbean world, by Stephen Bonsal, author of "The Fight at Santiago," "The Real Condition of Cuba," etc.

PROFESSOR PHILIP VAN NESS MYERS, author of standard text-books on ancient history, has recently devoted himself to the ethical aspects of history, and has in preparation "History as Past Ethics," which will soon be published by Ginn & Co.

THE story of "The First Church's Christmas Barrel" (Crowell), by Caroline Abbot Stanley, concern a home missionary and his wife in the West. Its humor, as well as its moral, make it an appropriate gift book for the Christmas season.

LEON B. ARCHER, who has been assistant to Eugene Sommer for the past four years in the book department of Raphael Weill & Co., San Francisco, succeeds him as manager. The stationery department will be under the separate management of J. R. Tyson.

THE astounding fact that there are 6,000,000 retarded children and 150,000 feeble-minded youths in our public schools mingling with normal children, to the great danger of the latter, is brought forth by Dr. Arthur Holmes in his new book, "The Conservation of the Child" (Lippincott).

A BEAUTIFUL edition of "Edinburgh: Picturesque Notes," in which Stevenson displayed some of the most charming and personal phases of his style and his character, is just published by Charles Scribner's Sons. It contains twenty-four full-page illustrations in color by James Heron.

THE Henry Hutt Book for 1912—a compilation of pictures (girls, of course), bearing the title, "Rosebuds"—is to be published by the Bobbs-Merrill Co. The volume measures 9 x 10 $\frac{3}{4}$ inches, and contains, besides the twelve pictures, page decorations in two colors.

As everyone who has ever heard of golf has heard of Henry Vardon, his new book on "How to Play Golf" will be warmly welcomed on November 16, the date set for its publication by George W. Jacobs & Co. It is a practical book for the beginner, describing the shots lucidly and showing in illustration Mr. Vardon in action.

SIR ARTHUR QUILLER-ROUCH has been appointed King Edward VII. Professor of English Literature at Cambridge University, with a salary of £800 ($4000) yearly. The intended foundation of this professorship was announced two years ago, Sir Harold Harmsworth giving Cambridge University £20,000 for its endowment.

"A BUILDER OF SHIPS," by Charles M. Sheldon, just published by Doran, is the story of a man of driving force and burning ambition, "A Builder of Ships" for the United States government, who, in pursuit of his plans to build the mightiest war engine afloat, disregards the integrities of social righteousness and brings about a catastrophe.

"THIRTEEN YEARS OF A BUSY WOMAN'S LIFE," (Lane), by Mrs. Alec Tweedie, author of "The Maker of Modern Mexico: Porfirio Diaz," explains how Mrs. Tweedie found herself poor after the sudden death of her husband, with young children to educate; how she started work against all obstacles, became a journalist, and wrote thirteen books in thirteen years.

A NEW monthly art magazine, to be known as New York Art, is soon to issue its first number. It is said that Dr. Wilhelm R. Valentiner, curator of decorative arts in the Metropolitan Museum of Art, will be the editor of the new publication, and Frederic Fairchild Sherman will be the publisher. It is declared that the new magazine will have a large financial backing.

HOMER'S "Odyssey," in a new metrical translation by H. B. Cotterill, an important item on the list of Dana Estes & Co., contains twenty-four reproductions of drawings by Patten Wilson. Other gift books from this house include Sophie Atkinson's "An Artist in Corfu," with fourteen full-page colored illustrations; and "The Sermon on the Mount," illuminated in missal style by Alberto Sangorski.

THE following books have just been published by the Bookery Publishing Co., 12 East 38th Street, New York: "American Bad Boys in the Making," by A. H. Stewart; "Nature's Truths Told to a Little Maid," by Margaret Irving; "A Fantasy of Souls," by Margaret Irving; "Bottled Sunshine," by Mary Dale; and "The Meaning of Eugenics," by Mary Dale. They have in press "The Human Touch," by Edith Nicholls Ellison.

COMING at a time when the greatest interest is taken in dancing of all kinds, Caroline and Charles H. Caffin's "Dancing and Dancers of

To-day: a Study of the Modern Revival of Dancing as an Art," has an especial appeal. It describes the history, significance and development of dancing, with separate chapters on the Russian ballet, Pavlova and Mordkin, Isadora Duncan, Ruth St. Denis, Gaby Deslys, Genée, the Apache dancer, and many others. Dodd, Mead & Co. are the publishers.

HOUGHTON MIFFLIN Co. announce the following publications for November 9: "The Autobiography of an Individualist," by James O. Fagan; "The Japanese Twins," by Lucy Fitch Perkins; "Intimations of Immortality in the Sonnets of Shakespeare," by George H. Palmer; "The Milk Question," by Milton J. Rosenau, M.D.; "Uriel, and Other Poems," by Percy MacKaye; "The Unconquered Air, and other Poems," by Florence Earle Coates; and a limited Riverside Press edition of "Success," by Ralph Waldo Emerson.

IDA M. TARBELL's views on the woman question, including the discussion of such themes as "What is the business of being a woman? Is it something incompatible with full and joyous development of one's talents? Is there no place in it for economic independence?" are given in "The Business of Being a Woman," just published by the Macmillan Co. As the opinion of an editor and author of undisputed ability, who is, at the same time, an anti-suffragist, Miss Tarbell's ideas cannot fail to be of interest to those who agree and those who disagree.

AMID the flood of enthusiasm over Japanese painting it may be well to listen to the sober opinion of an eminent American painter, Royal Hill Milleson. In "The Artist's Point of View," just published by A. C. McClurg & Company, Mr. Milleson says: "Compare the fidgety, unsatisfying Japanese school of art with that which goes to nature for its axioms. The former is artificial, stilted and decorative, much of it resembling child's play; yet it has this in common with some other schools, notably the Egyptian, that it is better than no art."

DESPITE the fact that Doubleday, Page & Company are hardly settled in their big Garden City plant, the rapid growth of their business necessitates more room. Work was commenced a few weeks ago on a two-story and basement wing, which will accommodate a portion of the shipping and bindery departments. Meanwhile, to relieve temporarily the congestion in the bindery, the latter department has taken possession of a portion of the editorial wing of the second floor. Since the opening of their own—"Country Life Press"—station of the Long Island Railroad, a few months ago, their shipping department has been hard pressed to meet rapidly increasing demands upon it.

AMONG the announcements for early publication by Longmans, Green & Company, are Mrs. William O'Brien's "Unseen Friends," studies of women who have played a noble part in the world's history, including some famous Sisters of Charity and Mercy, as well as well-known authors, like Christina Rossetti, Mrs. Oliphant and Charlotte Bronte. The long-awaited "Life of Father Tyrrell," a two-volume work on railroads by Professor Ripley of Harvard, a new novel by Canon Sheehan entitled "Miriam Lucas," in which the "Irish Curse" prominently figures, and Andrew Lang's 1912 annual, "A Book of Saints and Heroes," are other interesting announcements on the Longmans' list.

IN addition to his contract with the government for ordnance maps, War Office maps, Indian government publications, T. Fisher Unwin has recently entered into a contract with H. M. Stationery Office empowering him to sell through his agencies in the colonies and abroad all government publications, blue books, consular reports, parliamentary papers, issued by that department. These publications will bear his imprint in addition to those of the agents in the United Kingdom. Catalogues are issued monthly and quarterly, and Mr. Unwin will send them post free on receipt of a request sent to him at 1 Adelphi Terrace, London. The works are of interest to all military, educational and local authorities generally. Public and other libraries also utilize them to a considerable extent. Mr. Unwin is arranging to appoint sub-agencies in certain important centers in the British colonies and dependencies.

THE fall publications of John W. Luce & Company comprise titles that cover a widespread field of interest. Heading the list is the new book by Gen. Morris Schaff, "The Sunset of the Confederacy," which promises to be one of the most noteworthy of the year. Of importance to students of philosophy is "The Introduction to a New Philosophy" ("Introduction a la Metaphysic"), by Henri Bergson. Others are "Nietzsche and Art," by Anthony M. Ludovic, a stimulating art treatise; a second volume of plays by August Strindberg, containing "Comrades," "Easter," "Paria," and "Facing Death"; Remy de Gourmont's "A Night in the Luxembourg," translated by Arthur Ransome, a romance that recalls the exotic flavor of Pater's "Marius"; "Indian Fairy Tales," by Lewis Allen, a charming collection of tales based on the authentic legends of North American Indians; "The Artist; a Drama Without Words," being a good-natured satire upon a pianist and his fashionable audience; "Aspects of the Irish Question," by Sidney Brooks, a timely volume, dealing with conditions and problems in Ireland in reference to impending Home Rule legislation; a humorous novelty, "The Excuse Book," the title of which describes it; and the "Young Lady Across the Way," which has been most attractively prepared with illustrations and decorations.

THE editor of Chronicle and Comment, in the November Bookman, and his caller, each returning from a different part of the world, were on the subject of literary shrines. "What would be generally regarded as the ten literary shrines of America?" queried the former. Well—they began to enumerate them and to jot the names down on a piece of paper, idly—well, there are the Hawthorne and Emerson houses in Concord, the Lowell and Longfellow houses in Cambridge, Poe's cottage in Fordham, Cooper's palace, Otsego Hall at Cooperstown, Bryant's modest residence east of the Berkshires at Cummingtown, the Ticknor house in Boston—this, principally by reason of its noted visitors, and chief among them Thackeray-Whitman's home in Camden, Irving's at Sunnyside, and—but that makes ten already, without counting Drake's grave in the little burying-ground at Hunt's Point, New York, which, judging by the letters that appear with such frequency in the metropolitan papers for decades concerning the disrepair into which the memorial erected above it had fallen, would seem to be one of the most important of all. Well, that's eleven, anyway, and probably two or three more ought to be added, either in place of some of those already accepted provisionally, or to swell the total to an irreducible minimum of, say, fifteen. We note, adds the Bookman's editor, that there is not one from the South on the list, and we are looking to our Southern friends to make good this omission in letters that will flood the editorial desk by each mail every day for a week or so after the publication of this number. Surely the South must have at least one shrine—a purely literary shrine, that is, and not merely a composite literary and political shrine like Monticello, to which we demur in advance. And the West, too—but there the shrines, while ripening rapidly (we suspect that there will be an active Riley shrine some day in Indianapolis, for example) are a little green as yet to be picked for our present purposes.

Colcord, Lincoln. The drifting diamond; with front. by Anton Fischer. N. Y., Macmillan. c. 279 p. D. $1.25 n.

Strange effects which the possession of a gem of marvelous beauty and great value has upon several sharply differentiated characters is the thread with which this tale of events is woven. The diamond has the power of making its owner love it not for what it means in money but for itself; it also has in it a lurking devil which portends evil happenings. The series of incidents which these qualities in the gem bring about, taken with the love story, which runs through it all, comprise a novel that will keep the reader's interest keenly alive.

Converse, Florence. The children of light. Bost., Houghton Mifflin. 308 p. D. $1.35 n.

Recounts the adventures and experiences that befell a group of interesting young people who undertook to solve in various ways the great problem of social reform. Story is told in first person by Clara Emery, who, as a child, lived in a co-operative colony, but when she inherits a fortune is obliged to go to live with relatives. She is a Socialist and with some others works for the cause, finding that many theories and beliefs, antagonistic to each other and to her ideals, masquerade under the name of Socialism. There is a love story, plenty of human interest, and a tragedy woven through the book.

Dreiser, Thdr. The financier; a novel. N. Y., Harper, c. 779 p. D. $1.40 n.

By author of "Jennie Gerhardt" and "Sister Carrie." Philadelphia financial circles, before, during and after the Civil War, is the setting for this story of a man full of the lust for wealth, and one might also say the lust for love. Frank Cowperwood has a genius for finance, and is troubled by no qualms of conscience when a politician gives him city funds to speculate with. The Chicago fire brings a financial crisis which exposes Cowperwood's transactions and causes his arrest, trial and conviction as an embezzler. Cowperwood, who has a wife and two children, becomes involved in a love affair with the daughter of Butler, the politician, who becomes his enemy, and still further complicates the affair. Book is a powerful study of an immoral man's fight for gold, power and the love of women.

Hamilton, Cosmo. The outpost of eternity. N. Y., Appleton. c. 330 p. D. $1.25 n.

Author has been shocked by the apathy of modern teachers toward unchecked degenerate tendencies of the younger generation, due to ill-assorted marriages and lack of inspiration on the part of moral teachers. He takes a woman, who through bad heredity is devoid of physical and moral health and sanity, and marries her to a fine, breezy, generous, but woefully weak man. He then shows what might conceivably happen to the two physically beautiful daughters of such a marriage. Book is interesting and suggestive, but its frankness makes trying reading in spots.

- Weitenkampf, Fk. American graphic art. N. Y., Holt. c. 10+372 p. pls. O. $2.75 n.
Treats of the reproductive graphic arts (etching, engraving on wood and metal, lithography) and their application to such specialties as illustration, bookplates and posters. Whole field is reviewed in a comprehensive though summary manner. The accomplishment of individual artists is considered primarily in its relation to general movements; the domain of the biographical dictionary is not invaded. Such a connected account of achievement in a wide range of possibilities carries us from the earliest products of these arts, with a predominant historical interest, to the most recent efforts at original expression. The appeal is both antiquarian and æsthetic. Index.
- Wells, Herb. G. Floor games; with photographs by the author and marginal drawings by J. R. Sinclair. Bost., Small, Maynard. c. 94 p. O. $1 n.
Author of "Tono-Bungay" here tells how to play games on the floor with blocks, lead soldiers and various original devices used with great success by his own two boys.

- Whitman, Sidney. German memories. N. Y., Scribner. 11+283 p. pors. O. $2.25 n.
By author of "Personal reminiscences of Prince Bismarck." Although an Englishman born, Mr. Whitman was educated in Germany, and has been closely affiliated with that country for fifty years. It was his original intention to become a man of business, but by chance he became a journalist, and in that capacity, as his field lay principally in Germany, he met the most distinguished statesmen, writers, and artists of that country. It was his intimate association with Bismarck that introduced him to other famous Germans. Volume opens with a most interesting account of life in Germany fifty years ago. As long ago as 1869 he saw his first distinguished German, Arthur Schopenhauer. Since then he has known Von Moltke, Frau Wagner, the King and Queen of Roumania, and many others. Index.
- Whittles, T. D. The parish of the pines; the story of Frank Higgins, the lumberjacks' sky pilot. N. Y. and Chic., Revell. c. 247 p. pls. D. $1 n.
Series of clear, realistic pictures of life and mission work among the lumberjacks of the Minnesota pine woods. Frank Higgins has spent years among these men as a missionary, but first of all as their friend and helper, and many of his experiences are related here.
- Williams, Hugh Noël. The love-affairs of the Condés (1530-1740); with 17 illustrations. N. Y., Scribner. 19+350 p. O. $3.75 n.
The Condés were a race almost as celebrated for its prowess in the affairs of love as for its valor in war. The story covers almost 200 years, and deals with most interesting episodes of the famous princes of this notable house. By the author of "A princess of adventure."
- Williams, Philip H. The modern chess problem. 2d ed., rev., with a new preface. Phil., McKay. 252 p. il. por. S. $1.25.
- Woodruff, Mrs. Helen S. Mis' Beauty; il. by W. L. Jacobs. N. Y., Doran, '11. c. 163 p. D. $1 n.
Characters are nearly all drawn from life. "Mummy" is a composite of three or four figures, but "Cookie," the humorous, kindly and cynical, lived in reality. The sermon which "Uncle Shoddy" delivers on the Sunday Mis' Beauty comes home was an actual sermon which the author took down verbatim. Plantation setting of the story is a picture of author's old home.
- Woods, Mabel K. Newnham-on-Severn; a retrospect. N. Y., Longmans. 6+179 p. pls. D. bds., 75 c. n. (To order only.)
History of Newnham-on-Severn, a Gloucestershire town.
- Woodworth, Rob. Sessions. The care of the body. N. Y., Macmillan. c. 8+359 p. D. $1.50 n.

Tells how Faith Palmer, a California girl, comes to live in a New England village with her old aunts, who have decided ideas about the family dignity. Faith makes many friends, and also solves some important problems for herself and them and wins their affection.
- Wright, Harold Bell. Their yesterdays; with il. by F. Graham Cootes. Chic, Bk. Supply Co. c. 310 p. D. $1.25 n.
Story begins with a boy and girl living next door in a country town, or, to be more exact, it begins at the moment when the boy reaching manhood stands for the first time face to face with life, and in his dreams goes back to his "yesterdays" when he and the little girl played together. Then the theme changes abruptly to the girl, who also for the first time is face to face with the realities of life and who also in her dreams goes back to her "yesterdays" when she and the boy played together on one side or the other of the hedge between their homes. Each succeeding chapter is written in a closely similar manner. First the man and then the woman is represented as facing some one of life's important experiences and then as going back and comparing the present with the past, and often taking inspiration and strength from earlier dreams. Neither is given a name from the first page to the last.
- Wylly, C. B. From the Black Mountains to Waziristan; being an account of the border countries and the more turbulent of the tribes controlled by the northwest frontier province and of our military relations with them in the past. N. Y., Macmillan. 20+505 p. 12°, $2.50 n.

The Publishers' Weekly

Subscription Rates

One year, postage prepaid in the United States, $4.00; foreign, $5.00.

Single copies, 10 cents. Educational Number, in leatherette, 50 cents; Christmas Bookshelf, 25 cents.

Advertising Rates

One page.....	$25 00
Half page.....	14 00
Quarter page.....	7 00
Eighth page.....	4 00
One-sixteenth page.....	2 00

The above rates are for unspecified positions. Special rates for preferred position (full pages only).

Higher rates are charged for the Summer Reading, Educational Number and Christmas Bookshelf, and for the monthly Book Review supplement sections.

Advertising copy should reach us Tuesday noon—earlier, if proof is desired out-of-town. Forms close Thursday noon.

Under the heading "BOOKS WANTED" booktrade subscribers, under their own names, are given five nonpareil lines (exclusive of address) free advertisement for specific books out of print in any issue except special numbers, but not exceeding 100 lines a year. If over five lines are sent the excess is at 10 cents a line. Books not out of print, unspecified wants, repeated matter, and all advertisements from nonsubscribers cost 10 cents a line. Objectionable books are excluded so far as they are noted.

In answering, please state edition, condition and price, including postage or express charges. Houses that will deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis should put [Cash] after their firm name. The appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the WEEKLY, does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it endeavors to safeguard its columns by withholding the privilege of advertising should occasion arise, booksellers should take usual precautions in extending credit.

"Books Wanted" must be designated by actual title, not by "any."

Write your wants plainly, on one side of the sheet only. Illegible "wants" are ignored. The WEEKLY is not responsible for errors. Parties with whom there is no account must pay in advance.

Under "BOOKS FOR SALE" or for other small undisplayed advertisements, the charge is 10 cents a nonpareil line. No reduction for repeated matter. Count seven words to the line.

Reference List of New Publications

Recorded in OCTOBER, 1912

This Reference List enters the books recorded during the month under (1) author, in Clarendon type, anonymous books having Clarendon type for the first word; (2) title in Roman; (3) subject-heading in SMALL CAPS; (4) name of series in Italics.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederick; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

For books received sizes are given in CAPS, books not received sizes are given in Roman numerals, 4°, 8°, etc. Prices are added except when not supplied by publisher or obtainable only on specific request. Where not specified the binding is cloth.

Those desiring to learn the entire publishing output of the month in any one field should look under one of the following MAIN HEADINGS:

PHILOSOPHY	MEDICINE	LITERATURE
RELIGION AND THEOLOGY	AGRICULTURE	POETRY
SOCIOLOGY	HOUSEHOLD ECONOMICS	DRAMA
LAW	BUSINESS	FICTION
EDUCATION	ENGINEERING, TECHNOLOGY	BIOGRAPHY
PHILOLOGY	FINE ARTS	GEOGRAPHY AND TRAVEL
SCIENCE	GAMES, SPORTS, AMUSEMENTS	HISTORY

Besides the titles listed under each of these headings cross reference is made from each to a limited number of cognate headings which collectively give all the new publications of the month in the given subject or group of subjects.

Inquirers looking for books on a specific topic should look hereafter under the general subject to which that topic belongs, i.e., GEOLOGY rather than SILURIAN PERIOD; MATHEMATICS rather than CALCULUS; ECONOMICS rather than WAGES. Books regarding specific Religious denominations, countries and persons, however, should still be sought for under their individual names.

Adventuring on the Great Rivers of South America

By CASPAR WHITNEY

For many years South America has been overlooked by travellers. It has been rightly termed the Forgotten Continent. In writing this record of his five overland and river expeditions into the wilderness about the great rivers, the Orinoco, the Amazon, etc., Mr. Whitney has produced an entertaining book, and one which has long been needed to fill a gap in travel literature and as a guide to travellers.
